BUS DRIVER FINED $100 AFTER CRASH

Hit Pole, Turned In Fire Alarm And
Is Arrested
In York.

RELIEF DRIVER IS SENT FROM HERE

Taken from a bus bound for Gettysburg early Monday morning in York, Richard Frazier, 31 years old, a driver for the Colonial Bus company, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or 30 days in jail, by Mayor Jacob Weaver in York police court Monday. The driver was charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

A relief driver was sent from here to bring the bus and its passengers on to Gettysburg. The bus was due to arrive here shortly before seven o'clock.

Struck Alarm

Frazier was taken from a large motorbus, which he was driving, when a York policeman overtook the vehicle in West York after it had struck a fire alarm box, causing the alarm to sound in an alarm of fire.

The Royal, Vigilant, Union and Rex companies responded.

Motorcycle Officer Saylor, who was in the western part of the city at the time, also started for the location of the box.

He Saw Bus

The motorcycle policeman told the mayor in police court that a motorbus loaded with passengers came out of Carlisle avenue and turned west on Market street. Motorcycle Officer Saylor said he waved to the bus driver to pull to the side to avoid a collision with the apparatus of the Royal Fire company, which was just leaving the fire engine house.

The motorcycle policeman proceeded to the alarm box, where he was informed that the pole bearing the box had been struck by a motorbus. The shock of the collision had jarred the box and caused it to send in its alarm.

Chased Bus

Immediately Motorcycle Officer Saylor started after the motorbus, overtaking it at the western limits of West York. The motorcycle policeman said that he drove his motorcycle 40 miles an hour to overtake the bus.

When he stopped the bus, he found that Frazier, the driver, was "very drunk," he testified. He added that the passengers on the bus were badly frightened. One woman, the motorcycle policeman said, was hysterical. The passengers informed the motorcycle policeman that the driver had been running the bus recklessly and that he had had several accidents on the road before the bus arrived in York from the East.

The bus was parked and Frazier was taken to York police headquarters, docketed for drunkenness and disorderly conduct and causing a false alarm of fire, and locked up.

Driver From Here

The bus company sent another driver to York from Gettysburg to take charge of the motorbus and drive it to its destination.

In police court, after hearing the testimony, the mayor warned Frazier of the grave danger in which he had placed the lives of his passengers.

He asked Frazier if he had been drinking and Frazier replied that he had not.

"You were examined by a physician and he pronounced you to be intoxicated," the mayor informed Frazier.

New donations to the fund of valor by which generous Gettysburgians hope to lighten the burden of 150 holders of American medals for bravery in defense of their country, when they visit Gettysburg July 15, some for the first time, swelled the total to $225.43 today.

With contributions continuing to pour in and fourteen days remaining before the heroes will pay their visit to Gettysburg, the sponsors of the fund believe that it will cross $250, giving the legionnaires, some of them cripples, ample funds to provide for their wants during their short stay here.

The heroes will leave Harrisburg, their convention city this year, on July 15 at 11 o'clock in three buses and many private automobiles, the number being estimated as high as fifteen. Many American Legion members from the capital city are expected to accompany the heroes. They will arrive here at 12:30.

NO END SEEN FOR FLIGHT

Fliers Pass Fifty-fourth Hour
Beyond Previous Record.

Chicago, July 1 (AP)—The Hunter brothers will fly on "so long as fabric and metal hold together."

So said Walter Hunter, junior half of the ground crew as the City of Chicago circled over Sky Harbor today, 54 hours ahead of the world endurance flight record.

At 10:40 a. m. John and Kenneth Hunter dipped in recognition of another hour elapsed, 474 hours of uninterrupted flight. They were only 26 hours from the 500 hour mark but their will be no stopping then if human brain and skill and the veteran ship hold out.

There had been gossip of landing at the 500 hour mark or at the Fourth of July, but Walter answered the question today.

Had Difficulty

There was some difficulty with the 175th contact this morning with the refueling plane and a conference was held by the ground crew.

They considered moving the flight to another airport for a steady drizzle was falling at Sky Harbor. They were told unofficially they could not do so. Casey Jones, official observer of the flight for the National Aeronautical association said the rule that fliers must land on the field where they took off, could not be suspended.

The plane was indiscernible in the cloudy skies today. The 8 a. m. contact had been made under a low sky. Once the contact was lost and had to be re-established under extreme difficulty and low visibility.

Family Tiff Ties Up Traffic; Highway Patrolman Arrests Both

The State Highway Patrol is not interested in marital strife unless the argument ties up traffic, and then it steps in. This fact is uncovered in the special report received by Superintendent Wilson C. Price from Patrolman D. J. Vota, of the Greensburg patrol station. The report is as follows:

"Having been ordered to proceed to a point on the Lincoln highway in Ligonier township, Westmoreland county, for the purpose of investigating about a man and woman who were on the highway engaged in an argument and tying up traffic, proceeded to the place and upon arrival found said persons stopped on the highway. They were asked what was their trouble and said they were having an argument as to who was going to drive their car. Mr. Stevenson was driving and Mrs. Stevenson wanted to drive, so they started an argument. They had a spit dog with them and Mr. Stevenson threw it out of the car. Mrs. Stevenson then got out of the car and started to walk, when Mr. Stevenson tried to put her back into the car. From information received from several persons I learned that they could be heard arguing a quarter mile from this point.

"Both Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson were taken to Ligonier, where they were found guilty on a charge of disorderly conduct before Squire Cook. Each paid a fine of $5 and costs. Completing the above duty I returned to the station. Weather was clear and cool, traffic light."

COMMEMORATE 3-DAY BATTLE BY EXERCISES

Patriotic Bodies To Pay Tribute To Soldiers Who Fell Here.

MANY TOURISTS ARE EXPECTED

With a triple holiday in prospect over the coming Fourth of July week-end, Gettysburg is expected to become the mecca for an unusually large number of tourists.

For the first time in recent years, exercises in connection with the sixty-seventh anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg are being held this year, beginning this morning and culminating Thursday evening with two sets of services on the battlefield. Many tourists are expected to participate in these exercises.

Conduct Exercises

This morning the local chapter of federal employees conducted exercises at Reynolds' monument in the grove, west of here, bearing the famous Union general's name. On Wednesday evening, the Gettysburg firemen will hold exercises at the 72nd, Pennsylvania and 83rd, New York monuments.

On the evening of July 3, the Gettysburg battlefield guides will pay tribute to the honor and valor of Southern troops at exercises at the new $50,000 North Carolina monument on West Confederate avenue, and in the evening, the American Legion, Spanish-American war veterans, Sons of Veterans and allied patriotic organizations will hold services at the New York monument on Hancock avenue.

Lower Marsh Creek

On the morning of the Fourth of July, exercises commemorating the birth of American Independence will be held at the cemetery of Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church, with special memorialization of Col. Mathew Dill, Revolutionary patriot and founder of Dillsburg. A. Boyd Hamilton, secretary of the state senate, will be the principal speaker at the exercises, beginning at 10 o'clock.

The Lions' club of Gettysburg has arranged a display of fireworks at the Playground for the evening of July 4 to which children and grown-ups are invited.

Most places of business in Gettysburg will be closed on the Fourth. Offices at the court house, the post office, law office, banks, most stores and other establishments apart from those in the every-day-in-the-year class will observe the day as a holiday.

On the other hand, hotels, restaurants, garages and filling stations will likely do a land office business with persons in many sections of the country taking a three-day holiday over the Fourth.

The Gettysburg Times will not be published on July 4 in accordance with a long-established custom.

The stores will remain open Thursday afternoon this week because of the closing on July Fourth.

Gas Prices Drop Cent as 4 Cent Tax is Cut Penny

Local gasoline prices dropped a cent a gallon to motorists today as the state gas tax dropped from four to three cents. Gasoline, the average price for which since May 29 has been 22 cents including the four cent tax, dropped to 21 cents today.

One company, that failed to raise their price to 22 cents last May, dropped the price to twenty cents a gallon. The change does not affect the price paid for the gasoline but only the amount of tax paid to the state.

Any gasoline vendors who fail to drop their prices a cent, have increased the price of gasoline, as they are collecting loss for taxes beginning today.

JUDGE SHOCKED BY DRY WITNESS

Amusing Replies Put Jury Into State Of Surprise.

Philadelphia, July 1.—The amazing replies of two federal prohibition agents that they "could not recall" accepting bribes and "planting" evidence against a Delaware county roadhouse, when accused of doing so by counsel for Lamont "Monk" Miller, so-called Schuykill county beer baron, Monday, threw Judge Oliver B. Dickinson and a jury of eleven men and one woman into a state of utter astonishment.

Judge Dickinson plainly showed he did not believe the statement of Joseph H. Light, a federal agent, that he could not remember whether he had suggested to other agents they had better be prepared to "plant" evidence against the Bow Creek Inn in the event they failed to find any liquor in the place on a raid last October.

"Didn't Recall"
While the judge appeared incredulous at the statement of C. L. Kokol, another agent, that he "didn't recall" making a confession to Colonel Samuel O. Wynne, prohibition administrator, that he had accepted "gifts" for tipping Meyers off to contemplated brewery raids, he made no comment.

Kokol and Light were among the government's "star witnesses" against Miller, who is called the king pin in the "beer racket" in Pennsylvania, and three of Miller's alleged henchmen, on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, threatening to shoot federal agents when they raided his brewery, the Mahanoy Manufacturing company, in South Ashland, in November last, with three other offenses.

James Strickhouser, North Stratton street, has accepted the position of manager of The Fashion Shop, Baltimore street, succeeding George L. Taylor, Jr., who resigned to accept a managerial position in Wheeling, West Virginia.

Mr. Strickhouser, formerly employed at G. W. Weaver and Son's store, has been night clerk at the Hotel Gettysburg for several months.

State Balance Is Lower For 1930

Harrisburg, July 1 (AP).—The balance in the state treasury at the close of business yesterday was $70,868,178, more than $6,000,000 below the June, 1929, balance.

The monthly statement of the treasury revealed today for the first time in several months a general fund balance greater than the motor fund balance.

and Rufus H. Bushman, $150, adding to the record of generosity of the local battlefield guides. Perhaps none is more familiar with the meaning of the Legion of Valor than the guides who daily point out the spot when untold thousands died here in the defense of their country.

The generous response of the guides has set a pace for the rest of the community to follow. Clyde L. Bream has been named by Colonel Davis to supervise those who have voluntarily offered their services in guiding the visiting heroes over the battlefield.

Retiring Dry Chief Says Enforcement Is Insincere

New York, July 1 (AP).—Major Maurice Campbell, retiring Monday night as New York prohibition administrator, issued a statement charging that "certain treasury officials have not been sincere in their efforts to enforce the prohibition law," and that local politicians and certain administration officials in Washington feel that some permits, revoked by him, must be restored in order to obtain support for the Republican state ticket next fall.

Campbell tendered his resignation last week after orders came from Washington transferring him to Boston.

BASS SEASON IS UNDERWAY

Muddy Streams Will Delay Good Fishing For Several Days.

Harrisburg, July 1 (AP).—While the official opening of the fishing season for all kinds of the finny species started at break of day, it is not likely that anglers will set out in any great number until Friday in search of the elusive bass.

This was revealed here today by the state board of fish commissioners who based their predictions on the muddy condition of the favorite bass streams in Pennsylvania. Due to the recent rains, they said, the streams are in an extremely muddy condition and because of the holidays Friday and Saturday it is not likely that fishermen in any number will visit their favorite haunts until July 4 and 5.

Admitting that further rains or thunderstorms between now and Friday would result in a further delay of the actual start of the season despite the official opening, the commissioners declared that they hoped for fair weather to increase the board's funds through increased sale of fishing licenses.

Approximately 175,000 licenses have been issued so far this year and if the weather is favorable during the remainder of the season the commissioners anticipate that the sale this year will exceed last year's 250,000 mark.

Bass, pike, pickerel and muscalonge may be caught from today until November 30, Sundays excepted, while lake or salmon trout may be caught from July 1 to September 29.

Frogs and tadpoles may be caught from March 14. The trout season, which opened on April 15, expires on July 31, thus making the month of July the one month of the year in which all type of fish may be caught legally in Pennsylvania.

PINCHOT NAMED BY STATE COURT

Supreme Court Can Upset Result By Rejecting Luzerne Vote.

Harrisburg, July 1 (AP).—Subject to correction by the Supreme court the complete official vote of the May Primary election, today gave Gifford Pinchot 632,719 and Francis Shunk Brown 612,620 for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Former Governor Pinchot's plurality was 20,099, the official vote computed by the state election bureau shows. Pinchot's lead is within 100 of the unofficial figure compiled by the Associated Press. So far as the election bureau is concerned, Pinchot is the nominee for governor.

The returns will stand as compiled unless the Supreme court rejects the Luzerne county vote. There is no formality connected with the completion of the count and the nominees are not notified.

The names of the nominees will be certified to the county commissioners on October 4 for printing on the ballots. The vote for governor was the largest polled for any office.

WESTMINSTER ATTORNEY DIES IN BALTIMORE

Westminster—Edward O. Weant, of Westminster, prominent attorney and a leader of the Democratic party in Maryland, died Saturday morning at 6:10 o'clock in the Union Memorial hospital, Baltimore, where he had been taken Friday for an emergency operation in an effort to save his life.

Mr. Weant was taken ill while attending a session of the state tax commission, of which he was a member, held in Baltimore several weeks ago, and little hope had been held for his recovery. The operation which he was to have undergone did not take place due to his death soon after entering the hospital. Death was caused by an internal hemorrhage.

DECLINES TO PLEAD TO SERIOUS CHARGE

Chambersburg—Heeding the advice of what he termed a "higher power," Isaac Everts, 60, of near Spring Run, charged in eleven informations with offenses against two of his daughters, told officers he had decided not to plead guilty at Saturday morning's session of court.

Shortly after his arrest on Tuesday, Everts admitted the offenses and expressed a willingness to enter a plea of guilty at the next sitting of the court. He told Corporal Frutchey of the state police that he had changed his mind. He said he wanted to retain a lawyer and think the matter over before he took any action.

Mr. Arnold was also slightly burned and Fire Chief Ellis Wagner was injured in a collision in answering the alarm.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold and family had been away from the house from 7 until 10:30 o'clock Sunday night. On Sunday evening, the gas heater is generally lighted so the wife has hot water to do her washing on the Monday morning.

The home of Ernest McFadden, in Peach Bottom township, near Delta. One hundred and eighty bottles of beer, and one five cent slot machine, were confiscated. That raid occurred Saturday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock.

The West-End cigar store in York was raided Sunday morning at 10 o'clock by Sergeant A. F. Dahlstrom, who seized three punchboards and one five cent slot machine.

IDENTIFY MAN AS ONE WANTED IN CHAMBERSBURG

Chambersburg.—A man giving the name of Harold S. Snyder, 21, of Harrisburg, and his birthplace as Chambersburg, is held in jail in Hagerstown for false pretense in passing a worthless check on a Hagerstown grocer.

Saturday Police Chief Byers went to Hagerstown with Frank Pheil and Chester Mickey, and Roy Eyer, all of whom identified the man as the one who attempted to pass checks in Chambersburg last week. Snyder denied that he worked the check racket in Chambersburg.

ARREST GAS STATION OWNERS IN MARYLAND

Hagerstown.—Seven filling station proprietors on the National highway between Hancock and Cumberland, two of them Washington county, were arrested in Washington and Allegheny counties Saturday on charges of false pretenses as the result of investigations of complaints that motorists were charged an exorbitant price for service and recommended to tourists service not needed.

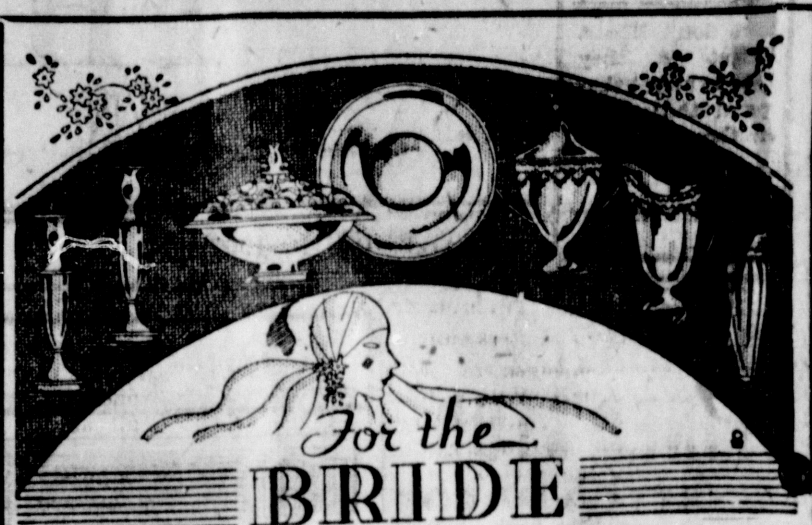

The arrests were made by State and Allegheny county officers following investigations conducted by the Maryland Automobile club, Cumberland chamber of commerce and the state itself. H. N. Abercrombie, president of the auto club, accompanied the officers on the raids.

500 Want Job; 25 Stay After Wetting

New York, July 1 (AP).—Five hundred girls might be nice to think about—in the abstract.

But when they showed up Monday in answer to a want ad in which Dr. Reuben Moss, dentist, sought an office assistant, "no experience necessary," other tenants, unable to get through the halls to their own offices, called for help.

The superintendent had to do something, so he got a garden hose, started sprinkling the halls, and 475 girls went away from there, leaving 25 applicants.

Germans Cheer As French Leave Rhine

Berlin, July 1.—All Germany once more is singing "Die Wacht am Rhine."

Amid tremendous outbursts of enthusiasm of the populace, the last foreign troops vanished Monday from German soil.

The French flag was hauled down for the last time at Mainz before noon.

Five hundred French troops were drawn up before the ancient Mainz Castle. There was a fanfare of trumpets blaring "The Marseillaise" as the tri-color descended the flag pole.

Lustily defying the edicts of the French commanders, thousands of Germans, gathered to witness the historic monument, spontaneously burst forth in loud cheers and hand-clapping.

Gets Third Chance To Develop Power

Havana, Cuba, July 1.—Professor George Claude, French scientist, who has failed in two attempts to harness the Gulf Stream for electrical power, will be given a third chance. This was decided Monday at a conference between President Machado, Secretary of Public Works de Cespedes and the scientist.

Professor Claude was ordered to build a giant tube at Matanzas, Cuba, to be lowered into the ocean in an attempt to extract electrical power. An attempt last week failed when a 1500-meter, six-foot tube tore loose from its moorings and sank to the bottom. Professor Claude claims the failure was due to sabotage and to guard against this President Machado ordered army and navy forces to guard the third effort.

A NICE GIRL COMES TO TOWN

By Maysie Greig

SYNOPSIS. Tony Titherington, daredevil aviator, enters into a "make-believe engagement" with Mary Lou Leslie within a week after they meet. Tony contends an aviator has no business getting married, and Mary Lou agrees to a temporary engagement so Tony's wealthy aunt will back him on his proposed flight around the world. She will not finance the flight until he becomes engaged to Mary Lou. Rather than disappoint Tony, Mary Lou agrees to this private bargain. Finally, and all too soon for Mary Lou, comes the day before Tony is to start. She breaks down at a farewell party for him, and Tony realizes that she is more fond of him than he had imagined. He tries to comfort her by telling her that he likes her more than any girl he ever met, and Mary Lou resolves to brace up and make the best of the situation.

Chapter 19

ADIEU TO TONY

Both Jay and Jerry noticed that Mary Lou was pale and tense when she came to breakfast the next morning, but they didn't comment. Jerry remarked, from the depths of his paper, that the atmospheric conditions appeared to be favorable for a flight. Jay kicked at him under the table, and caught Mary Lou by mistake.

Mary Lou smiled. "Please don't try to be tactful, Jay," she begged. "If you really want to do something for me, you'll both come out to Croyden and see Tony take off about eleven o'clock."

Readily they agreed. The haste in getting through breakfast and preparing to start for the field helped the situation for Mary Lou. She wore a fawn tweed coat and a red felt hat with a tiny brim.

She wouldn't see Tony until they arrived at the field, and then it wasn't to be expected that she would see much of him.

A huge crowd had assembled at Croyden when she arrived. Mary Lou drew back in alarm.

"I never dreamed there'd be so many," she said.

Jerry grinned. "I did. It's just the sort of thing the public revels in, especially if there's a dash of romance thrown in."

He winked broadly at Mary Lou. "You'll find yourself the heroine of the hour."

Judging by the huge crowd that surged around her the moment she stepped out of the taxi, it did appear that way. Friends, newspaper reporters, photographers, all talking at once, all asking questions.

She would have enjoyed it if she had not felt as she did. As it was, she longed to get away from them all, to find Tony, to be alone with him.

Luckily, the crowd was not allowed in the field where Gay Girl lay, like a huge silver bird spreading its wings in the sunlight. Tony was tinkering about the machine, testing the engines in a last-minute inspection.

She wanted, oh, so desperately, to feel that he really belonged to her. She didn't care what suffering she might have to go through.

She felt a hand touch her arm, and a gruff voice said, "Well, well, how's Mary Lou bearing up?"

Mary Lou turned with a start. "Oh, Miss Titherington," she exclaimed, "I didn't know you were coming."

"Of course, I intended coming all along," Miss Titherington asserted. "Wouldn't miss the spectacle of that fool of a nephew of mine starting off on this crazy adventure for anything in the world."

Her tone was mocking, but the look in her eyes gave her away. Mary Lou understood. She thrust her own arm through Miss Titherington's.

"Come along and we'll talk to Tony."

Tony waved his hand airily as they approached.

"Well, Aunt Ethelberta, it is a surprise! It's ever so decent of you."

"Pshaw!" Aunt Ethelberta said curtly. "Don't waste time on me. Talk to this girl of yours. She's the one who needs your attention. She's worrying herself sick!"

Tony introduced them to the mechanic who was accompanying him. He was a cheerful sandy-haired Scotchman, MacTavish by name.

Jay and Jerry strolled up. Miss Titherington seemed to like Jay.

Minutes fled by.

"Well, we may as well start her up," Tony commented presently, in the same casual voice he might have used when preparing for a spin in his car.

All along Mary Lou had been anticipating this moment, but now its suddenness shocked her. She wanted to run to Tony, cling to him, beg him to wait just a little while longer. With an effort she controlled herself, and forced a smile.

"Tony was shaking hands with all of them, accepting with a smile their fervent good wishes. Mary Lou was the last."

"Well, cheerio, old thing," he bent and kissed her lightly on the cheek. That casual kiss chilled her.

"Humph!" commented Miss Titherington caustically. "If I had a young man and he kissed me like that, I'd box his ears!"

Her remark saved the day. Everyone was only too ready to break into laughter.

"Don't fuss, aunt," Tony grinned back at her, as he prepared to climb into the cockpit. "If you do, I'll come over and kiss you instead. Besides Mary Lou and I understand each other perfectly, don't we, Mary Lou?"

He grinned down at her in his old lopsided way. "Mary Lou, you must play up!" she whispered to herself.

"Of course we understand each other," she smiled back. "Tony Good luck!"

The propellers already were in motion. With a final "cheerio," Tony climbed into the cockpit and Gay Girl taxied across the field and rose gracefully into the air.

A hundred photographers focused their cameras in her direction; hundreds of handkerchiefs fluttered. Cries of "Good luck, Good luck!" were heard on every side.

Mary Lou did not wave. She couldn't. Her eyes strained for a last glimpse of Tony. At first she could see the top of his brown leather helmet, but soon that was lost from view, and only the machine remained, a great silver bird in the clouds, flying away from them, flying.

Suddenly she started to run, as though she thought she could keep pace with him, could race around the world after him and Gay Girl. Now she could no longer see Gay Girl distinctly. The plane was elongated, blurred. Tears were streaming down her cheeks but she didn't know it.

Then Gay Girl seemed to swoop down directly on top of her. She shouted out hoarsely, stumbled, fell.

"Quick, Jerry!" It was Jay's excited voice. "I think Mary Lou has fainted."

And high up in the clouds a plane passed out of sight.

In tomorrow's chapter Mary Lou discovers that her worries have only begun.

INFANT DEATHS SHOW DECREASE

Health Work Said To Be Responsible For Steady Decline.

During the 24 years of registration of births in Pennsylvania the infant death rate has decreased from 167 per 1,000 live births in 1906 to 70 in 1929, according to preliminary figures for last year as prepared by the bureau of vital statistics, state department of health, at Harrisburg.

In the first year of registration only three cities of 10,000 population or over recorded infant mortality rates under 100 while last year Dunmore, Steelton and West Chester were the only localities which had infant mortality rates of over 100.

Unreported Births

However, the bureau directed attention to the unreported births in the early years of registration to explain the high death rates of 1906 and also declared that the actual number of infant deaths last year, though the lowest on record, created a higher rate than 1927 due to the decrease in births.

There was a decrease of 11,000 in births between 1928 and 1929 and that naturally kept the death rate up, the report set forth, adding that if the number of births in 1929 had equaled that of 1927, Pennsylvania could have registered with pride an infant death rate of 63 per 1,000 live births.

Health Progress

The progress made in the last twenty years in public health is credited by the bureau for the decrease in the infant mortality rate. Pre-natal care, strict regulations governing milk and water supplies and greater attention to child welfare generally as a health problem are responsible for this decrease, the bureau reported.

The greatest reductions in infant deaths have been in the preventable diseases, particularly diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever and whooping cough.

The infant mortality rate, which is based on deaths of children under one year of age, does not reveal, the bureau stated, that 56 per cent of the infant deaths in 1927 were at an age of less than one month and 23 per cent at an age of less than one day.

The reduced population of Gettysburg compared with the census of 1870, has occasioned some surprise.
During the ten years a number of new buildings have been put up, all occupied, with no vacant dwellings.
The reasonable inference is that either the census of 1870 was exaggerated, or that of 1890 defective.
The borough authorities could have the latter tested, in a single day, by having one or more persons take an enumeration of the number of inhabitants, omitting all data as to names, ages, &c. We know of one entire family omitted in the first ward.

WATCHING RAINBOWS
By Mary Graham Bonner

Because of the wonder of the Little Black Clock's magic, the children could have the time turned back so they could still watch the beautiful rainbow that looked so lovely in the sunlit rain.

"A rainbow is so contented and so friendly and so satisfied with everything as it is," the Little Black Clock said.

"Almost everyone and everything looks ahead to what they may want to do."

"A road wants to end some place,
a person wants to land somewhere,
but a rainbow has never cared that it didn't have any ending anywhere."

"You know, too, a rainbow lets each person claim it for his very own."

"I don't quite understand," said John.

"Everyone sees a rainbow slightly differently from the next, all ac-

GIVING

The art of giving calls for grace.
A kindly smile upon the face,
A tender light within the eye
For gifts are ruined by a sigh.
And oft are bitterly misjudged
When it appears they are be-grudged.

The splendor of a gift is lost
However great may be its cost.
If he who gives it wears a frown
And harshly drops the token down.
And fails to speak the kindly word
By which the heart is touched and stirred.

Unless the man who serves the need
Himself finds pleasure in the deed
Which lifts another's weight of care
He spoils his gift, however fair.
For what are little wants supplied
When words of friendship are denied?

Gifts little lustre have unless
The donors glow with happiness.
And when ungraciously bestowed
They but increase man's heavy load.
For those by need to take compelled Will miss the smiles that are withheld.

cording to the way the sunlight is reflected in his eyes."

"Oh, how lovely," said Peggy, "for everyone to have his own rainbow!"

"The rainbow feels that way about it, too. Then, you know, there is an old saying that 'a rainbow in the morning is the shepherd's warning,' and it has a good deal of meaning, for if there are showers early in the morning they are likely to keep up all day," the Little Black Clock told them.

Yes there was something very happy looking about a rainbow. In the bright, soft exquisite colors, a rainbow seemed to carry a beautiful cheeriness all, all its own.

What fun it had been to look at the rainbows with the Little Black Clock.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

"Cock-a-doodle do!

How is little you?"

sang the Old Red Rooster under Little Jack Rabbit's window one morning, Oh, so early, as the grass lay wet with dew and Merry Sun was climbing up the misty sky of blue.

"Oh, I'm very well," shouted the little rabbit from the open window.
"I'll be down in a minute or two.
Keep on with your cock-a-doodledo."

Then you should have heard that old rooster. Why, he, crowed for nearly five minutes. Maybe he would have kept it up longer if the bunny boy hadn't hopped out of the house to enquire how dear Uncle Lucky was. You know Uncle Lucky, don't you, little reader? Mr.
Lucky Lefthandfoot, who lives in a little white house on the corner of Lettuce Avenue and Carrot Street, Rabbitville?

"Uncle Lucky is well. He sent me over this morning to weed Lady Loves' flower garden," answered the Old Red Rooster. "Guess I'll go into the barn for the hoe," and away he went on his yellow toes for the garden hoe and his work-a-day clothes.

By and by, after breakfast was over, the little rabbit thought he'd make a call on Uncle Lucky. Kissing Lady Love, his pretty mother, goodbye, he hopped out on the Sunny Meadow and up the Old Cow Path.

"Where are you going?" asked

Timmie Meadowmouse, peeking out of his little round grass-ball house, which he made by weaving together
the tops of the meadow grass.

"Over to Uncle Lucky," answered the bunny boy, hitching up his knapsack and swinging his red-striped candy cane in his left paw.
"The Old Red Rooster has come over to weed Mother's flower garden. Guess I'll go over and help Uncle Lucky."

"One good turn deserves another.
Isn't that so, bunny brother?"

sang the little meadowmouse from his tiny front doorway.

"Maybe I can do an errand for Uncle Lucky," answered the little rabbit, hopping away, clipperly clip, clipperly lip. You see, little reader, Timmie Meadowmouse had sown
the seed for a kindly deed in the little rabbit's heart. Yes, he had made the bunny boy stop to think for a minute. And when you stop to think you often feel just like doing something for someone.
Thoughtless people don't mean to be unkind. They just don't stop to think.

By and by, the little rabbit came to the Shady Forest. Pausing beneath a tree, he let his knapsack slip to the ground and wiggled his pink nose this way and that to catch the smell of danger that Billy Breeze might bring to him. Billy Breeze, you know, is just as good as a telephone to warn little four-footed folk of danger.

Twinkle, twinkle went the nose
Of little bunny Hoppy Toes.
But he did not care to sneeze—
He was testing Billy Breeze
For a danger smell, you know,
That is why he acted so.

Powered Aircraft To Be Used
In Cross Nation
Flight.

Dayton, O. (AP).—A non-stop flight across the continent in a motored glider this summer is planned by E. A. Johnson, chief of the municipal airport here.

The pilot estimates that his craft, "the Buzzard," will make the 2,500-mile hop from California to New York in two days.

He will take aboard two gallons of gasoline and plans to use the mo-rated as having more money than anybody else, has absolutely refused to have any sort of an operation.

It is noticed that the youngest baby of Jeff Potlocks cries out loud every Sunday in church. Some believe he is just doing it to show his tor only to gain altitude at the start.

Crossing Ranges

Johnson believes he will have no difficulty in going over western mountain ranges once he ascertains the drift of air currents. He will try out the mountain passes before attempting the trip.

The glider equipped with a 34-horsepower English type engine, has a power cruising radius of 240 miles and a speed of 60 miles an hour. It was designed by O. H.
Snyder, a Wright field engineer.

In tests Johnson has reached an altitude of 16,000 feet. At this height he turned off his motor and glided to earth. Even with the motor off he was able to gain altitude.

The only other trans-continental glider flight was made by Capt.
Frank Hawks, who was towed by an airplane for six days, cutting loose for landings over cities enroute.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

SETBACKS

WHEN everything goes merrily ahead we are apt to get very careless and neglectful. But setbacks shake us up and compel us to think.
Many a seemingly ordinary man wakes up later to find himself big and great because of setbacks that have stirred him to renewed courage and enterprise.

Fresh leaders arise out of catastrophes.

Often it takes almost superhuman courage to say: "I start all over again tomorrow," after you have viewed the work of years in results melt away before your eyes.

But setbacks are the tests of character. In emergencies you often see the unknown weak man of a sudden become the strong man.

If a boy could early learn to face his every setback with a calm courage and with the deep philosophy of courage as the corner stone of his heart structure, he would be assured of a life happy in its ending.

There are times when we have to work out our life absolutely alone.
And to do it we have to have equipment. Setbacks furnish an important part of this equipment.

Each of us must handle our troubles and misfortunes as belonging to us alone. No one else in all the world would welcome them. Most people feel like backing away or disappearing instantly as soon as you mention that you have them. They are both too common a heritage of all.

Setbacks? Make them each a North Star to guide you in the way that you should go. Or in the way that you are mystified as to how or where you should go.

In full cry now and in the midst of the greatest winning streak in golf's royal and ancient history, Bobby Jones has captured four of the last five national championships in which he has taken part, with the American Open at Interlaken in July as his next engagement.

The Atlanta wizard won the 1928 American Amateur, the 1929 American Open, fell by the wayside in the 1929 American Amateur but has swept the links of Britain to again pick up the threads of victory. Jones led his Walker Cup team to one-sided triumph abroad in addition to capturing the British Amateur for the first time, the British Open for the third time in five years.

Bobby's only major setback since he lost a playoff to Johnny Farrell at Olympia for the American Open crown in 1928 was at the hands of Johnny Goodman, the boy from Omaha, in the amateur championship at Pebble Beach last summer.

The interesting angle is that the last has not been heard of young Mr. Goodman, who nonchalantly stood off his eminent opponent on

The Nebraskan led the country's qualifiers in the National Open preliminaries last year, worked his way East and finished the rugged Winged Foot layout, even though his final tally of 418 was 24 strokes back of Jones. This at least was better than such stars as Johnny Farrell could do.

This June, Goodman was within a stroke of the top among some 1200 aspirants for qualifying places and will be in the finals at Minneapolis. Even though he is not in a class with Jones as a scoring machine, it will be interesting to see what Goodman does at Interlaken in his second attempt; even more interesting to see what happens when he goes to Merion in September for the National Amateur. Golfing fate might make some arrangements there to cast Bobby and Johnny together again in match play and scramble around to enjoy the fireworks.

Chicago, apparently ready to turn out bigger crowds whenever there is a sporting demand for them, has again demonstrated its ability to outdraw New York or any other town in the country.

Its principal indoor arena, the Chicago Stadium, outstripped New York's Madison Square Garden in average boxing turnouts for the 1929-30 season. The figures show the Stadium averaged 13,341 customers and $56,607 in receipts for 23 shows, with a top gate of $184,584 for the Walker-Loughran match in March. The Garden averaged $12,708 paying guests for 31 shows and $42,690 in receipts.

In indoor activities, Soldier Field, on the lakefront, has enabled Chicago to attract the greatest crowds and "gates" in sports history. The football record was set at 110,000 when the Army-Navy game first was played there in 1926 and surpassed when 123,000 witnessed the U. S. C. Notre Dame game of 1929.

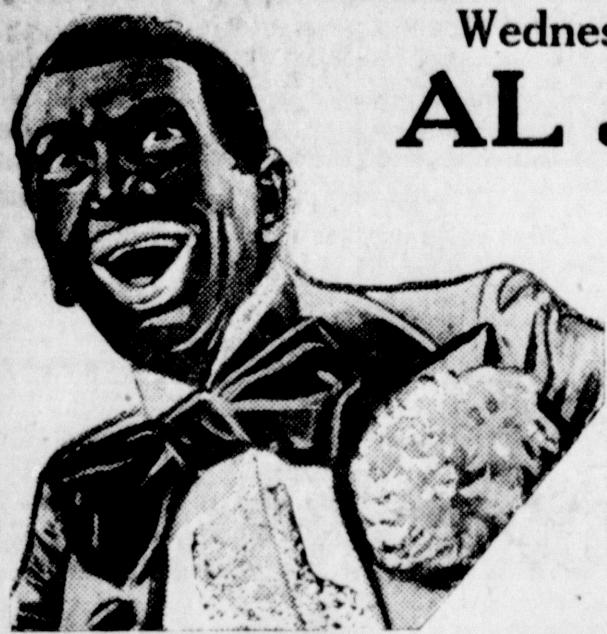

In the same arena, Tex Rickard put on his greatest fistic show, the second Dempsey-Tunney bout, which drew 145,000 customers and nearly $3,000,000 in receipts, doubling the "gate" for any fight ever held in New York.

Uses 40 Eggs To Make "Giant" Cake

Mt. Vernon, Va. (AP)—Here is Martha Washington's recipe for "great cake," the manuscript for which has been presented to the George Washington museum at Mt.
Vernon:

"Take 40 eggs and divide the whites from the yolks. Beat them to a froth, then work four pounds of butter to a cream and put the whites of eggs to it a spoonful at a time till it is well worked, then put four pounds of sugar finely powdered to it in the same manner, then put in the yolks of eggs and five pounds of flour and five pounds of fruit. Two hours will bake it, add to it half an ounce of mace and nutmeg, half a pint of wine and some French brandy."

The recipe is in the original manuscript written by Martha Parke Custis for her grandmother, Martha Washington.

HUGE SURPLUS IN TREASURY

Figures For 1930 Are Ahead
Of Those For Year
Before.

Washington, June 30 (AP)—Huge tax payments from income derived in 1929 will enable the treasury today to complete the 1930 fiscal year with a surplus of approximately $200-000,000, but will find itself faced with the problem of providing adequate funds to pay the $4,500,000,000 appropriated by congress for next year in view of prospective dwindle-ing revenue.

The treasury's last statement issued for the close of business last Thursday showed the government had collected $212,520,000 more than it had spent since last July 1. With no large payments to be made before the end of the year tonight it appeared certain that the surplus would be in the neighborhood of the Thursday figure. The surplus for 1929 was $185,000,000.

The Wall street collapse last October, which, for a while, had been expected to reduce income tax collections, was shown in the payments to have affected but comparatively few of the millions of taxpayers.

Arrest 22 Women Poker Enthusiasts

New York, June 30 (AP)—New evidence of woman's emancipation cropped out in magistrate's court Sunday. Twenty-two women poker enthusiasts were arraigned on charges of disorderly conduct on complaint of the husband of one of them.

He had appeared at a police station and said his wife was an inveterate poker player, spending too much time and money at the game.
So police raided the apartment of Mrs. Rose Schwartz, arresting the 22. The magistrate, however, discharged them for lack of evidence.

Salt Lake City, June 30 (AP)— Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, announced here today that he and Mrs. Alice Taylor Sheets, of Salt Lake City, would marry soon.

The date was not made known.
Mrs. Sheets, prominent in activities of the Latter Day Saints church of which Mr. Smoot is an apostle, has been a widow since 1918. Senator Smoot's first wife died more than a year ago in Washington.

AGAIN KONJOLA
SHOWS HOW IT
"MADE GOOD"

Pittsburgh Resident Relates
How New Medicine Proved
To Be Exactly What
He Needed.

MR. MARK P. LOVETT

What mightier recommendation can a medicine have than the grateful, sincere and enthusiastic endorsement and praise of those who know what Konjola has done and can do? Give thought to the words of Mr. Mark P. Lovett, 40
East Roseridge Avenue, Bellevue,
Pittsburgh, who says:

"I was generally run down in health; weak, tired and worn out each morning. Gas and bloating followed meals, and I had headaches and dizzy spells. I spent hundreds of dollars seeking relief. I paid as high as fifty dollars for examinations. Then Konjola was recommended. Konjola surely made good. Every morning I am refreshed, ready for the day's work.
Gas and bloating have disappeared;
my food digests properly; bowels
are in fine condition and headaches are less frequent. It is worth a lot to get such relief, and I cheerfully endorse Konjola, the medicine that gave it to me."

Konjola cleanses and stimulates the ailing organs and rids the system of poisons. Then, and only then, is there room for health.
Konjola is sold in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, at Murphy's Cut Rate drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.
